

TABOOS and TOTEMS: Biased Conventions To Be Challenged (Politics of Despair Book 4)

We are all subjected to accept prepackaged beliefs to a lesser or greater degree by the society to which we belong including the smaller groups constituting it, once we become a member of a such social unit. While without a doubt several are necessary elements in the form of temporary taboos and totems to form the membrane of cohesion essential to societal constitution and continuity, many among them, however, are permanently prejudicial to the sane functioning of an ethical society generally and the individuals constituting it particularly. That is why: It is our duty as sane individuals to question all unproven claims or mythologies imposed upon us whatever form it takes. It is part of our Inalienable Individual Rights.
