

Entertaining Naked People

As a small boy, frail in body and spirit, Ed taps into lives that had been lived and lost long ago. They dig through him like lingering nostalgia for days he cant quite recall. Pathologically sensitive, he feels what friends and family hide even from themselves. Depressed, overwhelmed, hes afraid to reach out into life. Ed leaves for college as the Vietnam War deadens souls and riots tear cities apart. When he is drafted he refuses induction, knowing that if he ever finds himself in a paddy facing an armed enemy soldier, he wouldnt be the one pulling the trigger. Hitching a ride west with a strangely wise cowboy, he is pulled ever more deeply into the bizarre and the impossible. Meeting healers and miracle workers, he sorts through his own darkness and power, learning from experience that death is only temporary. Ed teaches massage school in southern California, his life spilling over with unbridled passion now of a more erogenous sort, but even bliss comes with challenges. Sometimes we must be destroyed to be reborn. Ed has to crawl from the wreckage of his own being; finding healing, joy, love, and fulfillment; one naked truth at a time. Entertaining Naked People is Magic Realism. It is today. This is not wizards and hobgoblins. There is magic in the Real world for all of us. Sometimes it only takes a little clearer form of loving to set it free. As Ed discovers in our story, sometimes we search long and hard for it only to find its been inside us all along.
